

ANTI ASIAN VIOLENCE RESOURCE GUIDE

A message from the leadership of the Office of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, Office of Spiritual and Religious Life and Campus Life

March 17, 2021

Dear Emory Community,

As President Faves wrote earlier today, "I am heartbroken for the victims and families touched by the tragic murders in Atlanta yesterday. The Asian and Asian American communities have endured discrimination and violence throughout the pandemic and this attack comes at a moment of horrific intolerance and hatred. Our hearts go out to all who are hurting today throughout Atlanta and in the Asian and Asian American communities. All of Emory stands united in the face of this atrocity—against violence; for compassion and understanding; and with great sympathy for those who are in pain."

We are reaching out to all members of our university community who are impacted by these terrible shootings in our metro area yesterday. We want you to know that your Emory community is with you, your loved ones, and all members of this community for whom this tragedy may be particularly personal.

Adding to the horror of this violence, the identities of most of the victims are cause for deep concern among us all, especially Asian and Asian American women. These crimes remind us that the targeting and violence that pervades our society today threatens us all – but especially our neighbors from historically marginalized groups.

Please know that you can turn to your university community for support and let us know how we can be of assistance. Staff members in Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, Spiritual and Religious Life, and Campus Life, among others, are here to support you. To help reach resources more quickly, we provide a list of links below.

In solidarity,
